

My experience in NCC

First of all, NCC- National Cadet Corps, the weight this term holds is just alarming. Calling myself a NCC cadet is something that makes me feel extremely proud. What I've learnt in this short period of time IN NCC is that you can never take anything for granted or get too ahead of yourselves here. This organization just does not let you! First day in NCC in my college, The Kamla Nehru College made sure to convey its message loud and clear, i.e., Go hard, or go home. If you think that NCC is all just about fitness, discipline and timing, then you are wrong, because it is also about friendships, empathy, sharing and compassion. You do not just go there to do physical exercises and just march past, along with this you also sign up for the unrevealed fun and various lessons which play a major role in shaping your life into something you will be proud to own. NCC gives you a motive, helps you to know your limitless abilities, nurtures your dedication, boosts your confidence, gives you the ability to always be on your toes and never get ahead of yourself. You also create a family here. A family that eats together, stays together, gets punished together, laughs together. But at the same time NCC also tests you at every step. Checks if you are worthy enough to be a part of the organization. It builds you in a way that you see the picture on a bigger level and do not just crib about the small things in life. So, my personal experience has been wonderful till now and I am sure will remain as wonderful, throughout.
