As the title is "Hav bhar Tiranga", so we have to hoist our tricolour in our houses, our neighbour's houses, our friends' houses, etc. It's a internal trend now. Today India is going to celebrate its 76th Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsab. After a few years India will be considered among the developed countries. But my point of view is that by hoisting our tricolour in our houses, can our motherland India be economically, politically, educationally strong or be a dominant one. The answer is no. Many people in our country every year die in the lack of proper treatment in many kind of diseases. There also exists childlabour in many reasons of our country. There is lots of poverty, illiteracy, etc. To make our country, a developed one we have to educate our youths to a maximum level, we have to increase our productivity, we have to make an "Atmanirbhar Bharat". The youths are the future of our country. So, I think that our motherland would be a dominate one only when the youths have highest literacy, productivity, courage and sacrifice, etc.
